

BEVERIDGE MADE ANOTHER SPEECH

INDIANA SENATOR CONTINUES HIS FIGHT ON LORIMER.

BITTER ATTACK WAS MADE

Upon the "Blaque Boss" and the Story of His Life That Was Given Yesterday.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—Senator Beveridge today replied to Senator Lorimer's speech. He denied any malice and declared it to be his intention to continue his fight on the sworn testimony.

The validity of Lorimer's election was the only issue, he said. He said Senator Lorimer's story of the trials of his boyhood days, his kindness to his constituents and others, had no bearing on the question at issue in this case.

They were not relevant to the question of bribery now being considered. All these incidents of his private life, while interesting, were not pertinent to this case.

Senator Beveridge reviewed the story of the conditions at Springfield during the deadlock as told by Senator Lorimer, and reiterated the declaration that all this had nothing to do with the alleged bribery of members of the legislature to vote for Lorimer.

Senator Beveridge continued his argument at great length, discussing the various aspects of the case from the viewpoint of those opposed to Lorimer.

While Senator Lorimer's friends are willing that a vote be taken on his case immediately, the indications are the opposition is not inclined to acquiescence.

Lorimer's friends claim 51 votes out of 91 in the senate. The opposition gives no figures.

Several senators are slated to speak against Lorimer, among them Senator Beveridge, who spoke today. Others are Senators Stone and La Follette.

Senator Lorimer's friends do not propose his enemies shall have the final word and it is stated that Senators Gallinger and Burrows will be heard in his behalf.

The case will not come to a vote today, and probably not for several days yet. If at all, at this session. That was made evident in the interchange which preceded the long anti-Lorimer speech delivered this afternoon by Senator Beveridge.

Senator Beveridge sought to fix by unanimous consent as to the hour for a vote. Senator Lodge objected. He said it was of the utmost importance the senate go into executive session at the earliest possible moment, presumably on the Japanese treaty.

Senator Stone of Missouri said he desired to make a few remarks on the Lorimer case himself. Senator Lorimer himself was not present to hear Beveridge's speech, nor was the crowd in the galleries as great as it was yesterday.

In the course of his speech in the senate today on the Lorimer case, Senator Beveridge practically charged the report in the case as originally prepared and signed by the members was not the same report which afterwards was submitted to the senate.

When appealed to, to say whether or not this was the fact, Senator Beveridge said he could not remember all of the details and suggested that the Indiana senator call on some other witnesses.

IMPORTANT MEASURE WAS INTRODUCED IN THE SENATE TODAY

Judiciary Committee Brought Up Bill To Decide Civil Courts of Milwaukee County.—Other Business of Legislature Today.

Madison, Feb. 23.—The introduction by the senate committee on judiciary of a bill to divide the civil courts of Milwaukee county into seven branches to correspond with the present divisions of the circuit court, there was the most important matter before the senate today.

The passage of the bill will mean that candidates for judgeship may be selected by branches of the circuit court without regard to the candidates of any other branches.

The senate today laid over the Liley resolution on the Sullyway pension bill until tomorrow. This resolution was adopted by the senate yesterday and sent to the assembly.

Senator Randolph and Assemblyman Rupp today received a letter from the Business Men's League at Berlin, Wis., which declared against the passage of the income tax bill now being considered in the legislature.

Beloit Man Charged With Serious Offense To Go Before Judge Grimm This Month.

Bound over to the circuit court with his bail fixed at $500, Charles Mann, of Beloit, charged with a serious offense, was brought back to the county jail here, this morning, to await trial after having been before Judge Ross at 10 o'clock. The man has been here in custody since the fifteenth of the present month on $1,000 bail and on a motion for a change of venue on the grounds of prejudice by his counsel it was granted and his bail reduced.

Somewhat Delayed: A mortgage on some Beloit real estate made out on Jan. 27th, by Ralph Webster of Telluride, Colo., as the party of the first part, and H. L. Duck of Beloit as the party of the second part, was just sent to the office of the registrar of deeds here today. On the outside of the instrument was the notice that it had been found among notes filed in a mail pouch, evidently from some train robbery, near Council Bluffs, Iowa.

PRICE OF PEACE. It has cost Europe during 25 years $67,600,000,000 to keep this fellow quiet.

ENGLISH EXPERTS ARE PESSIMISTIC

British Authorities Say There Is Danger of Spread of Plague From China Into Europe.

London, Feb. 23.—English experts do not generally share in the hopeful view expressed by physicians in the Orient to the effect that there is little danger of the spread of the present plague epidemic from Manchuria to the Occident.

With the advent of warm weather, at the latest, the majority of British authorities believe, it will be a miracle if the disease does not appear in Siberia. Once it gains a foothold there in view of Russia's primitive methods of quarantine and sanitation, they consider it certain to break out quickly in the European portion of the czar's realm, and from there they doubt if all the effects of the authorities of neighboring countries can prevent it from reaching Western Europe.

The English view point is especially pessimistic from the fact that there were four undoubted cases of pneumonic plague—the type now prevalent in Manchuria, from which there are said to be absolutely no recoveries—in East Anglia last autumn and that the epidemic of the same disease among rats, rabbits and hares, is now spreading all over the island. Dr. Sambon lecturer to the London school of Tropical Medicine, goes even further than other English authorities, pointing out that modern sanitation so effective in the prevention of most other diseases, hardly ever checks plague.

"The vehicle of the plague germ," he explains, "is not sewage or drinking water, but rats and fleas, and wherever they are to be found, there the conditions necessary for a plague epidemic exist."

The claims of the plague upon the world's attention," says the London Morning News, commenting gloomily on Dr. Sambon's utterance, "are unhappily not diminishing as the winter advances, although all previous experience shows that the winter is far less favorable to its spread than the summer. At this moment Manchuria, with a winter climate much like that of Canada, is experiencing an appalling visitation with scarcely any more scientific resistance to the disease's progress than could be attained."

MAY CREATE BUREAU OF NATIONAL PARKS

Two Bills Introduced in Congress Propose to Put Control of Parks and Reservations Under One Department.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—A Bureau of National Parks will soon be created, if a bill similar to one introduced in the House by Representative Daykin of Wisconsin, and in the Senate by Senator Borah of Idaho, be enacted into law. It is the purpose of the bill to place the control of national parks and monuments and reservations under one bureau, instead of, as at present, having them controlled by several.

President Taft recommended the creation of such a bureau in his annual message. The secretary of the interior is known to favor the plan and in his annual message to the president said:

"It will doubtless be necessary in the accomplishment of these propositions, to create a Bureau of National Parks and Reservations, and the planning under it of a consistent and broadly considered scheme for national parks and resorts to fit the future needs of the United States Government, would be in line with the policy under which our first President planned in 1800 the federal city which now bears his name. Without such planning no such civic convenience, beauty, impressiveness and national dignity as the city of Washington now enjoys, would have been possible."

The government now maintains nine great national parks, and several other smaller parks and reservations, the total area of which is 4,606,153 acres. During the last five years $28,815 was appropriated for and $152,871 received in the way of revenue from the national parks. The revenue is derived largely from concessions made to individuals or companies for operating transportation facilities, hotels and lunch stations.

The bill introduced provides for the appointment of a commissioner with such experts and assistants as Congress may from time to time authorize, and appropriates $75,000 for maintenance of the bureau.

VITAL PRECEDENT IN LAW INVOLVED

Much Interest Taken in Suit Brought To Prevent Aviators From Flying Over Man's Property.

Paris, Feb. 23.—The suit against Maurice Farman against his pupils at the aerodrome brought by M. Vallet, to restrain them from flying over his property and through "his private air," is attracting great interest here since it is the first suit of the kind and involves a vital precedent in law. The decision will soon be handed down by the French courts.

M. Vallet asserts that a score or more aeroplanes circle over his farm daily, frighten his horses and make his hands nervous. The lives of his men are in constant danger.

Airmen contend that the air, like the sea, should be free to all alike and that unless it is aviation will become impossible.

FORMER PROFESSOR GAVE AN ADDRESS

James A. Blaisdell, Now President of Pomona College, Spoke To Beloit Students Yesterday.

Beloit, Feb. 23.—Prof. James A. Blaisdell, a graduate of Beloit College, who was recently inaugurated president of Pomona College, Cal., gave an address in the college chapel, yesterday, on George Washington.

Prof. Blaisdell spoke at some length of the slight knowledge which we have of Washington, even when we had more than a hundred years of that our his true character.

Throughout his address Prof. Blaisdell frequently contrasted Washington and Lincoln, both as to similarities and differences. He also spoke most impressively of the peace and security, and the self-reliance of the man who was willing to go and work for his country even after he was sixty years of age.

WOULD CHANGE THE DAILY PROGRAM NOW

Idea Is Bring All the Spouting At the Night Sessions of the Senate From Now On.

Madison, Feb. 23.—A new plan for expediting business of the legislature was announced today by senate steering committee, which means, if adopted, that sessions will be held every morning from 9:30 to 10 and recess taken whether the calendar is finished or not. This will give several hours each day for committee hearings, and the completion of the calendar, which is expected the senate will be cleaned up and waiting when the assembly is half through.

MONARCHISTS FORCED TO LEAVE PORTUGAL

Threats of Secret Society Has Caused Many Sympathizers With Old Regime to Seek New Homes.

Lisbon, Spain, Feb. 23.—The recent sudden flight from Portugal of large numbers of sympathizers with the old regime is beginning to be explained. The monarchists are leaving the country under threat of assassination by the Carlistas—the secret society which was directly responsible for the engineering of the revolution.

The heads of the present government are not members of the organization. The Carlistas consist mainly of the "bourgeois" class and of soldiers and sailors, either of the ranks or the bearers of the lower grade of commissions. After the revolution had been won, through the society recognized the necessity of giving the high governmental offices to men of higher standing than any of those possessed.

Mon Ibe President Braga, Forelun Minister Machado, Minister of Public Works Gomez and Minister of the Interior Almeida were accordingly placed in charge. The chief difficulty that these men had to encounter has been that they are entirely dependent upon the good will of the Carlistas retain office. And the society being exceedingly radical and irresponsible in its composition the greatest trouble has been experienced by the establishment of a civilized government without antagonizing their supporters.

Victims to any of the ministries have clearly shown the remarkable character of the situation, the ministerial ante-chambers swarming with leading members of the secret society most of them uneducated and often unintelligent men, whose advice and criticism the ministers have not dared to disregard and to whom they have been forced to give audience to the exclusion of callers with legitimate business to transact, even including the diplomatic representatives of foreign powers with which it is of the utmost importance to Portugal to maintain good relations.

One respect in which the provisional government has given especial umbrage to the Carlistas has been in its retention in office—for the sake of their experience—of a number of minor officials of the days of the monarchy and in refusing to exile former monarchists who have, since the revolution refrained from interfering in politics and seemed disposed to accept the new regime.

Finding the administration deaf to its demands along these lines the Carlistas finally took matters into its own hands and served notice on the objectionable individuals that they must leave the country or they would be killed. Most of them accepted the former alternative. Among those who remained a series of assassinations may be expected at any time. The government is not strong enough to oppose more than a passive resistance to the society, so there is no prospect that such assassinations will be punished and it is likely that the administration will be driven to a general confiscation of the fugitives property very soon. The places of the officials who have been forced to flee are being filled with members of the Carlistas, wholly inexperienced in their work, and inevitable confusion is certain to result in all departments.

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN TOBACCO CIRCLES

Work along lines of general routine is the order of the day at the tobacco warehouses of the city. A number of the dealers have received consignments of goods from the farmers of the section and others have received shipments from the north. The business in the old tobacco is quiet at present and only a few sales are reported. It is the general opinion that most of the old leaf has been brought up with scattering lots of various amounts left in the different warehouses. For this reason it is hoped by some of the dealers that a good demand for the 1910 crop will be found in due time.

One of the places of activity during the past month has been the S. B. Heddes warehouse where the Fisher and Fisher salvage from the warehouse fire of January has been rehandled. A large force of men has been at work since January tenth on this job and out of the 217 cases which were saved some ten cases have been treated by the Heddes cleaning and sterilizing process, of which Mr. Heddes holds the United States patent and has been made nearly as good as it ever was. The balance of the salvage will all be treated and made ready for packing by the middle of next week. The entire amount of the salvage has already been sold to eastern dealers.

Mr. Heddes has received a large amount of banded goods and has at present enough to start sorting. He will open his warehouse next week, March 1st, with about forty hands. Other receipts for the past week have included some 71,000 pounds, by the American Tobacco company, which was taken in last Tuesday, their only receipting day during the past week. S. B. Heddes has received some 75,000 pounds from the farmers and also some 100,000 pounds of banded goods which was taken in at Lad, Wisconsin, and Madison. An added force of about fifteen hands are at work at this warehouse. G. H. Russell is receiving today at Edgerton and a car of old goods was shipped to Philadelphia. P. S. Bates is today shipping a car of '08 goods to Milwaukee.

Forces are now at work at the warehouses of R. L. Eiler, who has had twenty hands employed for the past six weeks, American John Soullman, P. S. Bates, Russell, T. E. Welsh, H. S. and Schwan. Weather conditions for the past few days have been excellent for receiving of the crops, although the first lay of so the roads were rough. Atmospheric conditions are also favorable for the storing of the crop in the warehouses; much better than last week when the dampness and fog was dangerous to the lots piled in the houses.

Less than half the entire crop of the state has been delivered but it is thought that slightly more than that amount has been delivered in the county. Some of the dealers who are running fall forces have not taken in any crops this week as they are anxious to reduce the piles of the goods which have been accumulated previously.

PURCHASED PROPERTY FOR SALOON BUILDING

Al. Teubert Bought Lots at 20 and 22 North Franklin Street and Will Put Up Brick Structure.
Albert Teubert, former proprietor of the St. Charles hotel, has purchased from John P. Sweeney the lots and buildings at 20 and 22 North Franklin street, and proposes to erect on the property a two or three story brick building. The lower floor, it is understood, will be used for a saloon. Refold & Hemminger now occupy one of the buildings and the other has been used by Emil Meyer as a shoe repair shop. As soon as the present occupants move out the old structures will be torn down and work commenced on the new building. The purchase price for the property was $3,000.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN.

More Carp.

Milton Junction, Wis., Feb. 23.—I read with interest the articles in your daily of Feb. 16 and 17 in relation to carp and carp fishing, having fished in Koshkonong lake annually since 1851 except during the year 1885, while I was visiting with Uncle Sam. Carp do not enter the spawn of other fish but they come to shore and deposit their spawn there and their swimming around over the heads of the fish that lay their spawn in shallow water, they cover the beds with muddy water and sand which destroy the spawn of the shore fish. The spawning of carp in my opinion is very detrimental to all fish that nest in shallow water in the spring. In draining their nests they cover the spawning beds with mud and sand and destroy them in the fall of the year. What spawn they did not kill have hatched and the young fish will frequent the shore and keep in the weeds and mud to keep from being eaten by the big fish. Then the fishermen come along with their nets and draw an immense pile of the small fish on shore with mud and weeds and millions are killed in this manner. Some three years ago the fishermen drew their nets on the shore opposite Charley Point on Mr. Bingham's land, they got the net drawn about noon, they took out the carp and went to their dinner, leaving the net with the game fish in the mud and weeds, after their dinner they took up their nets and departed for other fields. Two farmers were there to see the sight and after the fishermen went away the farmer gathered up four grain sacks full of like all they could take home in their buckets and left the shore lined with mud and sand. You all the fish's gills with mud and sand and it will surprise you how quick it will die. Up until they commenced netting, I could catch my sack full of bass, carp, blue gills and perch. Last summer it was almost impossible to get a mess of fish where before netting in a short time I could not get a nice string.

HAS ACCEPTED CALL TO CLINTON CHURCH

Rev. L. L. Cory of Waukesha Will Occupy the Pulpit of Clinton Congregational Church.

Clinton, Feb. 23.—Rev. and Mrs. L. L. Cory of Waukesha, arrived yesterday to look over the situation currently before deciding to accept the call to Mr. Cory to become the pastor of the local Congregational church. At the midweek meeting held last evening Mr. Cory announced to the waiting audience that he and Mrs. Cory had decided to accept the invitation to come to Clinton. The time they can move here can not be stated now as a good deal rests with the time of his being released by his Waukesha people, but it will be before Easter. Clinton certainly has great cause to congratulate herself upon her good fortune in securing Mr. and Mrs. Cory and a very hearty welcome is awaiting them.

Fire Alarm.
The fire bell again changed its ominous alarm yesterday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock. The fire proved to be the roof of J. R. Switzer's blacksmith shop on lower Durand street, but it was soon extinguished with but little damage. It was caused by the sparks from the heating stove, chimney falling on the shingles. It is the second time the same building has caught from the same cause. The fire company with almost a full complement of men were on the job in a mighty short time.

Personal.
Charles McConnochie came out from Marquette University, Milwaukee to spend Washington's birthday with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettie Drake.

There were a good many faces displayed here yesterday but not nearly as many as there should have been. Emanuel Rogers of Rockford, who has just returned from an extended trip to California, is visiting friends and old neighbors here for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olson have moved back to town and will occupy Mrs. Antensen's house known as the old Springer home on Maple Avenue. Mrs. S. M. Waller is very sick at the home of her sister, Miss Mary Montgomery, M. D.

Mrs. E. K. Tuttle of Hollet, and sister, Mrs. A. B. Tuttle, of Waterville, are visiting friends here for a few days.

Miss Florence Smith very delightfully entertained a large company of her little school mates yesterday afternoon. Delightful refreshments were served and a delightful afternoon was spent playing games.

Mrs. Edward Ellithorpe goes to Milton Junction tonight to help her father celebrate his eightieth birthday tomorrow.

Really Interesting.

"Oh, yes," Mrs. Smith told us, "my husband is an enthusiastic archeologist. And I never knew it till yesterday. I found in his desk some queer looking objects with the inscription 'Mithras, 8' to 1'. And when I asked him what they were, he explained to me that they were relics of a lost race. Isn't it interesting?"

Strange Method of Suicide.

An extraordinary method was adopted when Walter McGowan committed suicide in one of the Dunfermline (Scotland) prison cells the other morning. He deliberately swallowed the wooden knob of the handle which was affixed to the end of the bell rope in the cell. Death was due to suffocation.

Soap from Banana Skins.

Banana skins are utilized in soap-making on the west coast of Africa. The skins are rich in alkali, so they are burned to an ash, and this mixed with water and palm oil goes to make a cleanser which is in demand among the whites as well as the natives.

American Pearls.

There is a growing demand for American pearls. Those taken from the western waters last season were valued at $500,000.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Institute Held by Moonlight Club in Shopkeepers Attracted Many People From Vicinity.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Shopkeepers, Feb. 23.—Under the auspices of the Moonlight club, a very successful Farmers' Institute was held in this village on Wednesday afternoon. About one hundred and fifty people attended the sessions and listened to able addresses by speakers from Beloit, Clinton and Janesville.

A general discussion followed each speech. A sumptuous supper was afterward served by the R. S. A. to seventy-five people. The evening program was one of the best ever given here and an audience of over two hundred was present. A resolution was unanimously adopted that a petition be sent to the representatives in the assembly and senate of the legislature asking that the tuberculosis law be amended, so as to better accomplish its purposes of eliminating as far as possible the white plague from the state.

BULWARK OF THE NATION

Triumph Progress Has Characterized the Human Endeavor on the American Continent.

During the past 25 years 100,000 miles of new railroads have been built, requiring an expenditure each year of not less than $200,000,000 for labor and material. We are both producers and consumers. While our population is only a little over five per cent. of the population of the world, we produce 20 per cent. of the wheat, 40 per cent. of the iron and steel, 55 per cent. of the copper, 70 per cent. of the cotton and 80 per cent. of the corn of the world. Furthermore, with inconceivable rapidity, machinery has taken the place of human toil, and incidentally millions of slaves have been set free.

The same triumphant progress has invariably characterized every phase of human endeavor on the American continent. Civil and religious liberty is a natural condition as well as an attitude of mind. The story of agriculture, of manufacturing, of mining, of the arts and sciences, demonstrates the unbroken progress and uplift of the whole people.

Finally, the health and well-being of the tolling masses have become, with constantly increasing earnestness of endeavor, the individual and collective purpose of the nation. And above all, the democratic idea, through good and evil report, has encouraged the personal work and character of the individual citizen. It has always believed that competition which encourages merit and skill should remain paramount. It has always gloried in this personal competitive type as the ideal and preserver of democratic traditions.—James O. Fagan, in Atlantic Monthly.

Telephoning From an Express.

The Birmingham (England) Daily Mail of Friday, July 29, reports that a resident of that city has demonstrated the possibility of telephoning from moving trains going at express speed.

The inventor first developed an apparatus which enabled him to speak from one side of a wall through to the other, and later to send sound waves through a six-foot wall. He then sought to develop an apparatus to telephone from a moving vehicle.

In the course of his experiments a frame coil was attached to a motor car traveling forty miles an hour. A wire was laid on the ground which was connected with an instrument in the part of the works where he was employed. While the motor car was going at full speed induction was established between the coil on the car and the ground wire, and a telephone conversation was carried on between the factory and the people in the car.

After this the directors of the London, Brighton & South Coast railway were approached, with the result that a coil of 60 feet was made and attached to an express train on that railway. Between the rails two wires were placed, and the stationary circuit was connected with the signal boxes at three bridges. Connection was made with the telephone instruments on the train, and July 26 the apparatus was tested while the train was running at express speed.

Gross Earnings of Railroads.

The gross earnings of the railroads of this country for 1908 of $2,448,835,000 were nearly double those of 1898.

And They Know It!

How many ways to the heart has a woman!—William Elery Channing.

Entertaining Janet

"But Janet had so many clothes when she came—hats, too," said Polly, watching Louise rip a scarlet wing off a winter hat and add it to a dazzling black velvet bow that crowned a formerly demure white loghorn.

"Oh, she has now," returned Louise's mother. "And it is most presumptuous of Louise to trim up that hat of Janet's without so much as asking her leave, and to send her off driving with Uncle Dick for entertainment. Louise doesn't seem to remember that Janet has taken her master's degree and accepted the chair of literature in that woman's college. Janet doesn't care for frivolity and the kind of good times that Uncle Dick gives a girl—summer parks and café dinners and crowds."

"When my sister Mary consented to let Janet come for the wedding she wrote that Janet and Louise would probably find a gulf between them. Louise has never studied. Mary said she hoped that we would make allowances for Janet's attitude during the wedding festivities by remembering her love for books and study."

"Mary added that Janet's only entertainment need be a few days in the reference libraries or at the art institute. She told us not to worry if Janet spent days among our books and seemed silent and shy."

"You see, the girls had not seen each other for years—not since we came to the city to live. Janet has been so wrapped up in study. Sister Mary has been eager for her to win scholarships and degrees, so Janet has studied straight through her vacations."

"But when Louise and Harry decided to be married this summer there was no way to satisfy Louise but to have Janet come up for a month before the wedding. Since Janet's position for next winter has been decided upon, Sister Mary decided to let her come for her first relaxation."

"Entertaining Janet has been an easy matter. We have done all the libraries and the art schools and the university lectures, and a clearer girl through it all I've never seen. Louise has really acted most rebelliously all along and has shunned me more than once with her lack of appreciation of the serious things of life."

"Since Uncle Dick came Louise has rejected responsibility openly and has taken to remodeling Janet's clothes in a shameless fashion."

"Janet did look very sweet, with her hair done as Louise most approves, but she sat out on the porch with Uncle Dick all evening and avoided the men, and kept that Dresden scarf about her throat for fear she would take cold."

"Louise has made it most unpleasant for Janet in many ways by this whole sale remodeling of Janet's gowns, adding trills of lace and ribbon girldes. Now see this scarlet wing on Janet's modest hat! If Janet cared for me it would be different. But until Uncle Dick came she had spoken to no one who is very shy."

"No, Dick isn't a real uncle; he's just a younger brother of the girl's. Uncle George's wife. You, he's a bachelor. But he has fathered the girls for years, though he's only 25 and he doesn't mind Janet's shyness and silence as younger men would. He has taken her to all the summer parks with their blarney attractions and with Harry and Janet they have done the downtown cafes."

"Really, Dick has been a godsend for Louise in many ways and the things that we feel Janet would care for seem to bore Louise dreadfully. Janet really likes that these frivolous excursions are Dick's way of giving her a good time, so she makes all allowances in that dear, adaptable way of hers. It's a safe arrangement all around."

"If only Louise would attend to her own affairs and leave Janet's clothes alone! It is most embarrassing Janet's mother has chosen her clothes, and she knows her daughter best and what she wants."

"Does she, indeed?" cried Louise, as she hung on the hat at a dashing angle and rose to get the effect. "I'm no speaking against Aunt Mary when she says that she knows Janet not at all. Indeed, Aunt Mary's lack of knowledge has been a cruel thing to Janet for years."

"I've watched Janet closely of late, and the way she has taken the map ped-out entertainment we have given her—for I couldn't believe that any girl on earth could enjoy it. We went to lectures and exhibits all we were both nearly crazy, only Janet didn't know what was the matter with her. She was longing for lights and crowds and music."

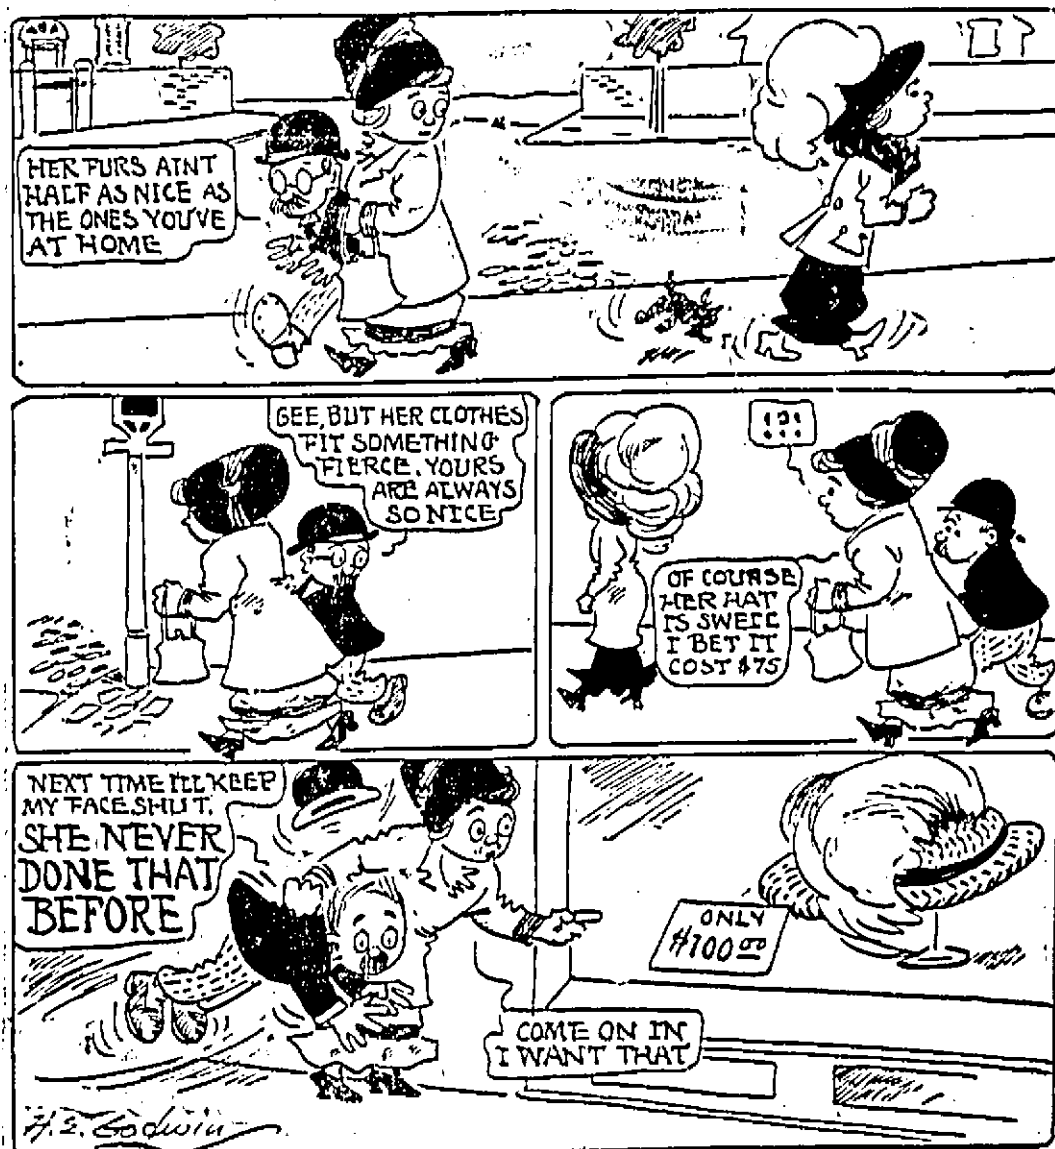

"It took Uncle Dick to make her realize what she wanted, and I'll bless him forever for that good deed. Janet has changed since Uncle Dick came and her clothes must change, too."

"We had a long talk last night. When Uncle Dick brings her home this afternoon they will tell you the college and on the date of its opening she and Uncle Dick are going to be married. Then they sail for Europe. Why, Janet is happy now for the first time in her life."

"I've done what I could to help along, and now the only thing I want to do is to put this smart little hat on to let her dusky hair and then wait until Uncle Dick's eyes when he sees the change in her!"

Scot Invented Postage Stamps.

The postage stamp made its first appearance in 1839. Its invention is due to James Chalmers, a printer of Dundee, who died in 1823. England adopted the adhesive stamp, according to a decree of December 21, 1839, and issued the first stamps for public use on May 6, 1840. A year later they were introduced in the United States and Switzerland, and soon after in Bavaria, Belgium and France.

Strained Relations.

There is a great deal of bitter feeling in our neighborhood just now. Men who have been friendly for years forget to speak when they meet in the street cars, and the women have stopped gossiping over the fences. No one knows for certain where the child is that started the chicken-pox circulating in the block, but we all have our suspicions.—Providence (R. I.) Journal.

Seek to Improve on Nature.

The great rose family has been increased by 450 members in the space of three years. Unfortunately, among the new varieties we do not find the blue rose, which so many specialists have vainly tried to produce for a number of years. We may already admire a rose that is almost black. The transition from black to blue is only a question of time.—La Nature, Paris.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature.

TO ALL READERS

The Gazette is anxious to bring each of its readers into closer touch with both the newspaper and each other. It would like to have them feel free to lend in news items. Notices of parties, personal mentions, happenings in your own community, accidents that may occur—in fact anything that you think would interest other readers.

Matters of this nature can be telephoned to the editorial rooms. Call Rock county telephone 02, or Wisconsin phone 77 three rings.

Meetings of lodges, church gatherings, and special meetings of clubs it will be necessary to have written out and left at or mailed to the Gazette to avoid mistakes which might otherwise occur.

The columns of the paper are also open to communications on subjects of interest. We welcome views of affairs, on one side of the paper only. Be sure to sign your name; it will not be published if you do not wish it to, and either leave or mail to the office.

Try this system and you will be surprised how much more interesting the reading of the evening paper becomes to you.

FIX RESPONSIBILITY.

Eastern exchanges in commenting upon the situation which exists in the upper House of congress relative to the passage of the Canadian reciprocity treaty, say that from a purely partisan standpoint the democrats in congress, and democrats generally, might well afford to assume the attitude simply of interested spectators in the reciprocity matter and let the republicans solve, as best they may, a problem of their own making.

The democrats are not called upon by the mandate of last November to move toward tariff reform in the present congress. They have, however, shown their good faith by voting for the McCall reciprocity bill in the House.

This gives them a record and one they can stand on. If alienating themselves with the President, however, they have enabled the latter to bring pressure to bear on his own party, and the effect of this may force them to plunge into the risky task of tariff revising months before they as an organization are ready to handle the question.

Plainly, President Taft would not think of calling an extra session, or of threatening to call one, unless he were counting upon help from the democratic side. Republican standpaters are fully cognizant of this, and because of this very knowledge they may not be as averse to the extra session as is generally supposed. The President has waved the extra session stick over their heads repeatedly; evidently he would prefer to carry the reciprocity agreement through without their aid, despite their opposition; it is not difficult to see how at this stage the standpaters might secretly wish to have him succeed and thus become responsible for every move the democrats may make against the tariff.

At the present moment the President is manifestly striving to fix upon the regulars of his own party responsibility for any mishap that may befall the reciprocity measure. No less clear is it that the regular republicans are desirous of placing upon his shoulders all responsibility for raising the tariff question at this session and for precipitating it upon the sixty-second congress with the help of his friends on the democratic side.

But the reciprocity agreement is a matter that rises above mere partisanship. For half a century friends of closer commercial relations between the United States and Canada on both sides of the border have been working toward the agreement now before the legislatures of both countries. Time and again they have been on the point of achieving victory, and time and again political partisanship and prejudice have combined to defeat them. At last the two nations have found a basis upon which they can enter upon a contract that provides a sturdy platform for the application of the square deal to their business intercourse. Neither seeks advantage; both realize that good must come of an honest, neighborly understanding. Whatever petty partisan gain democrats might obtain by holding aloof from the reciprocity controversy at this time would be lost in popular disapproval of such a course. They can better afford to give help to a republican administration measure in this instance than to see it go by the board. In maintaining the stand they have already taken they will be doing not only the right but the politic thing. It will be all the better for them if the reciprocity agreement shall be forced through the senate at this session, and they should help to bring this about; but if it shall fall to pass and an extra session shall be called, they will be exhibiting a degree of wisdom for which the people will give them credit at the first opportunity if they shall confine themselves as closely as possible to the terms of the President's call.

The opportunity that will thus be presented them of proving to the nation that they can, at last, be trusted to take a conservative and sensible course, despite temptation to the opposite, is one they should seize if they are looking for a renewal of their lease of power in 1912.

FIVE CENT THEATRES.

One of the mistaken ideas of the governing powers of the city appear to be the neglect of a careful supervision of five-cent theatres of the city. Nightly there are displayed upon the canvases in the various theatres in Janesville many pictures that might well be omitted. This is not true of every picture shown, but many of them should be most carefully censored before they are permitted to be exhibited. Chiefs of police and students in criminology make the bold assertion that the pictures shown in five-cent theatres are in many cases the cause for creating thieves and even murderers. Pictures which tend to show the work of crooks, of burglars at work, of murders, are not good for the average audience to view. There are plenty of subjects which the film houses of this country and of Europe prepare that are most excellent, but the love of excitement and battle scenes, shootings, murders and the life of thieves all appeal to certain classes and are placed at the disposal of the theatre managers for their patrons' enjoyment. There should be a restriction on this class of films. The city authorities are responsible for the bringing up of the youths of today who will be the men of tomorrow. Of the young girls who will be the mothers of coming generations. It is a moral responsibility and one which they should not shirk. Give authority to some one person, preferably the chief of police, and let him act as censor for the pictures that are to be exhibited. It will tend to elevate the quality of the films shown and will also help the morals of the whole community.

GENTLEMEN FARMERS.

As an institution, the landed proprietor of England and the continent is unknown in the United States. Most of the larger American country places have many things in common with European estates which, belonging usually to members of the aristocracy, include extensive fields and forests that environ residential quarters which may be the home of the owner all the year round. In contrast, however, to what obtains abroad, the wealthy American usually looks upon his farm lands as a pastime, rather than his source of revenue. A generous portion of the income from industrial or financial enterprises is very likely devoted by the American gentleman farmer to making his country place a model of its kind. He prides himself on his ability to make truck gardening, for instance, a fine art of agricultural development. Away from his city office, this other "man with the hoe" thinks, for the moment, more of his cabbage patch than of all the railroads in which he may hold investments. He is liberal with his money, to a point where the frugal farmer may term the experiments extravagant. But, incidentally, the gentleman farmer is reaping some reward from his liberality, for there is an exceptional demand for what his farm is yielding, and he is demonstrating that what is worth doing is worth doing well.

It is hardly to be expected that the average farmer can devote the greater part of his time to experimentation. Where he looks to his land for his living, there must be some assurance that income will at least measure up with outgo. But, on the other hand, the work of the gentleman farmer benefits the owner of the small farm. The wealthy neighbor may spend a fortune finding out how to improve the tomato crop, or what feed is best for cattle during the winter months. If the less affluent tiller of the ground wants interesting information it is there for his asking, and many of the owners of large country estates are devoting much of their time to telling of their experiences.

That the gentleman farmer works in conjunction with those who, like himself, are able to gratify their bucolic desires, is attested by the various societies which have for their purpose the dissemination of agricultural information. In the state of New York, for instance, men like J. Pierpont Morgan, Joseph H. Choate, William K. Vanderbilt, William Rockefeller, James Stillman, W. Seward Webb, Whitelaw Reid and fifty-eight others, compose what is called the New York farmers. When at regular intervals this body meets around the banquet board having present as guests experts from leading agricultural colleges, with subjects for discussion like "Our Friend the Pig," "The Hens," "Horsehoes," "Corn" and "The Heavy Harness Horse," it is at once apparent that whatever of value there may be in the talk will be available to the agricultural world without restriction.

Surplus wealth could hardly find a better channel for usefulness than where the gentleman farmer makes his incidental vocation a pleasure to himself and a profit to others. Within an extended farming community he must be a force for good. The owner of the country place should be an incentive; and while it is true that the products of these large estates are in great demand, it is also evident that in most instances the cost of maintenance is greater than the profit.

Much is said of late regarding the value of state agricultural experiment stations. The gentleman farmer seems to fill a place of his own in the back-to-the-soil movement, yet his amateur farming is not self-centered. He appears to be willing to pay the cost of knowledge, though the result is for all who care to take advantage of it.

While Chicago is having a lively contest for its mayoralty candidates, Janesville appears to be most quiet politically. Nothing doing is the talk and it is possible that there will be but one candidate for the office of mayor and that one a democrat.

Selection of aldermanic candidates in the different wards should be most carefully examined into before promises of support are made regardless of who may or may not be a candidate. Good men are needed in the council to guide the destinies of the city and care should be taken in their selection.

It would appear as though that so-called Stephenson investigation had petered out. Governor McGovern is said not to be in favor of it, while the friends of La Follette want it pushed. Meanwhile the documents lie in the pigeon-hole of a committeeman's desk and will probably never see the light of day again except to be officially killed.

Bristow of Kansas was a great man before he became United States senator. In discussing the rights and wrongs of political life, but since he entered upon his Washington career he seems to have forgotten all the doctrine he formerly preached. However, he is not really such an important figure as one would think for to hear him talk.

President Taft and his Canadian reciprocity plan has really struck the popular accord and is endorsed by men in all positions except a few who are laboring under the mistaken idea that it is going to impoverish our American farmers by bringing them into competition with the Canadian wheat growers.

It takes a Cannon to make things move and Milwaukee has presented its member of the state board of agriculture as the head of the automobile show at the coming state fair. It talk will make this department a success. It will exceed all expectations for Mr. Cannon can out-talk any ordinary salesman and make the public believe what he wishes them to.

When I have slipped my tether, and left this vale of tears, to see what sort of weather they have in other spheres, I want no costly casket with silver linings bound; I just put me in a basket under ground. Death would be far more jolly and pleasant every way, but for the idle folly of making the display. It takes a roll unending to make a graveyard spread, and all the fuss and spending don't help the man who's dead. "Twere best to keep the strikers safe hidden in a tub, to comfort the survivors and buy them duds and grub. I know that it would grind me when on the other shore if those I left behind me had wailed before the door if I looked down and found them, immersed in tears and woe, with creditors around them all howling for the dough. So when I up and trundle down to the sunless sea, let no one blow a bundle for planting me. I'll slumber just as sweetly in some old bass wood box, as though trussed up completely with silver screws and locks.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THESE THREE.

I am a pessimist.
What is that?
Well, a pessimist is one who stops halfway between the optimist and the pessimist.

I am not a pessimist because a pessimist never gets anywhere, besides making himself miserable.

I am not an optimist because an optimist dreams dreams and may never go out into the world to help make his dreams come true.

I am not a pessimist because a pessimist sees but one side of things, and that is the worst side.

I am not an optimist because an optimist sees but one side of things, and though the side he sees is the best side, it is not both sides.

I am a pessimist.

The pessimist holds up his hands in horror at the tendency of the times, sees graft and corruption everywhere and believes the world is going down the toboggan slide to the eternal how-woes.

The optimist is sure the world is getting better all the time. He talks to you about "the eternal outcome" and the "power that makes for righteousness." And, growing zealous for the day of millennium, he shouts, "Hurrah for the heavenly jubilee!"

The pessimist?

Well, he says to the pessimist, "Things are not all bad," and to the optimist, "Things are not all good either." To all he says: "Things are good, bad and indifferent. Let us see things as they really are." But, above all, says the pessimist—

"Let us help to make things better!"

This is the reasonable view as well as the view which accomplishes.

He is on the middle ground between the green and the hell-hell—the ground where most of us live most of the time.

Seeing all sides, he has a wide opportunity where the pessimist has none; a wider chance than the optimist, who has some. He seeks earnestly, but rationally, to help the world along.

And now abide pessimism, optimism, meliorism, these three, but—
The greatest of these is meliorism.

Spanish coins have been counterfeited, perhaps more than the coins of any other country. Even at the present time Spain is redeeming counterfeit five peseta pieces. OLIVE OIL.

Under the Pure Food Law all oil made from olives is pure olive oil, yet there is as much difference in olive oil as there is in butter.

Cheap olive oil is made from olives that, through causes of decay, insects or storms fall to the ground. Sound, healthy olives stay on the trees until ripe, like our apples. They are then gathered, the oil pressed without heat. This is virgin olive oil. The second pressing is obtained with steam and hot water, which is known as fine table oil. The rich flavor and medicinal properties are found only in the virgin oil which is of a greenish-yellow color. It is very nutritious. Used in color. It is very nutritious. Used in color. WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

I WAS planning to buy a most beautiful willow plume for my summer hat.

Then I read the following interesting facts about the making of willow plumes:

These wonderful long lined feathers are made by tying onto each little flue of the ordinary feather another little flue.

The tying is done with a weaver's knot—a complicated in-and-out tying of two strands.

That means that a worker, working all day long at this torturing task, can make about three dollars a week.

Many children do this work which means that they must be strung with sightless baby eyes.

So on the whole I decided to be content with the old fashioned kind of plume, less beautiful but less suggestive.

Isn't this a fashion that merciful women would do well to place the ban of their disapproval upon?

A sad story came to me the other day of a woman who was knocked down by an automobile and taken unconscious to the hospital.

She had nothing upon her person by which she could be identified and she remained unconscious for some hours. It was impossible to send for her people.

When she did come to herself and was told what had happened, she at once asked why her husband had not been sent for.

The nurse explained and the injured woman supplied the missing name and address fifty miles away. All speed was made in notifying her husband and it took him an hour and a half to reach the hospital and by that time his wife had lapsed into unconsciousness.

She was never conscious again.

The shock of her death was a most terrible thing to her husband and in addition he had to bear the nagging agony of the thought of that precious hour and a half of consciousness which he might have had if he could have been notified as soon as the accident happened.

The suggestion is so plain that I hesitate to point it out.

No, of course it isn't likely that anything like that will ever happen to you, and of course it's ludicrous to speak of such things.

But to say nothing of sudden illness there are all sorts of accidents continually happening. I read but today that in the past year there was an average of ten violent deaths a day in New York City.

And surely it wouldn't be any great trouble to always keep a card with your name and full address on it in your pocket even if—as I most sincerely hope—you should never have the slightest use for it.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Read them which are hidden, I have prepared my dinner, and all things are ready.—Matthew 22:4.

Some Dishes for Luncheon.

The noonday meal may be one in which the frugal housewife is able to use the left-overs of the previous dinner, unless of course the dinner is served at noon. In that event, the supper dishes may be largely dutifully prepared left-overs.

If a bit of creamed vegetable, carrot, cauliflower or peas is left over, wash the sauce off of the vegetable in cold water and use them with salad dressing for a salad. Many times it is better not to combine several vegetables, but dress them with a salad dressing and arrange them in small piles on the salad plate, each in a lettuce nest. This is called macedoine of vegetables.

When a few lamb chops are left over, spread them with a thick white sauce, well seasoned and mixed with two tablespoonsful of chopped, cooked ham. Dip them in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. The chops, of course, are seasoned and cooked before the white sauce is added.

A few points added to a lettuce salad and French dressing adds nutriment and makes a pleasant change.

A delicious dessert for luncheon is made by beating the whites of three eggs, adding six tablespoonsful of powdered sugar and three-fourths of a cup of grated pear with a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Beat all together until firm, and serve with a boiled custard.

Quick Bread Pudding.—Cut thin slices of bread into two-inch squares and arrange in a buttered baking dish with layers of raisins or any bit of left-over canned fruit. Pour over it a pint of milk to which three tablespoonsful of sugar and two beaten eggs have been added. A bit of cinnamon or grated nutmeg may be added. If any pieces of pastry are left in making a pie, cut them in tarts and fill with preserves or jelly.

Surprise Pudding.—Mold boiled rice in a border mold, turn out on a stone platter, dot with bits of butter and brown in the oven. Fill the center with canned peaches, pears or apricots, drained of their juice. Pie whipped cream over the top, sprinkle with chopped nuts and serve.

A MODEL CLOTH GOWN.

One's favorite shade of material may be effectively employed for this design, but we suggest a rich shade of dark blue, with black satin for the skirt, cuff and ends—the latter finished with black silk tassels. The tunic is particularly pretty and graceful, running from waist line in back to hem of skirt 1/2 front, ending in sharp point and with two deep folds on each side. On bodice two large pointed revers open over a chumkinette of allover white lace matching the deep cuffs on sleeves.

If Not True, It Ought to Be.

Lord Derby's remark to the prince consort as to the difficulty there would be in forming an administration if its members had to pass an examination of naval cadets standard may be paralleled by a story which Lord Lytton's friends used to tell against him. His handwriting was one of the worst. The story ran that he put in at the table of the House of Lords an amendment to the reform bill of 1837, proposing that nobody who could not read and write legibly should be entitled to vote. Next day it was returned by the clerk as illegible and incapable of entry in the journals without further explanation. If this story is not true, as Lord Fitzmaurice hints, it ought to have been.—London Chronicle.

Censorious Middle Classes.

Let those of the middle class who are prone to criticize and condemn the conduct of those above them set their own house in order. Let them consider the beam that is in their own eye. For one scandal among the upper classes that receives full publicity a score pass unnoticed in lower grades of society.—Lord Haldon, writing in the "World and His Wife."

No, of course it isn't likely that anything like that will ever happen to you, and of course it's ludicrous to speak of such things.

But to say nothing of sudden illness there are all sorts of accidents continually happening. I read but today that in the past year there was an average of ten violent deaths a day in New York City.

And surely it wouldn't be any great trouble to always keep a card with your name and full address on it in your pocket even if—as I most sincerely hope—you should never have the slightest use for it.

EXPRESSES OWN VIEWS

Thinks Latter Would Rid Community of Many Undesirables By This Method.

To the Editor: Once more I have wandered into print with a few suggestions as to the city's welfare. Janesville is a pretty good place to live and make your home in, but there are many things which need re-adjustment to make it a more perfect city. I have always been an advocate of the law in everything and I am now in favor of the residents of this city and consequently I may have perhaps rapped the knuckles of some who are only the commercial side of a question.

Our schools perhaps come in for more discussion than any other topic. The reason why is seen quickly when we realize that the boys of today are the men of tomorrow and the girls are the mothers of coming generations of citizens and will have to bear the brunt of the burdens of the future. There are no days like the school days. Childhood is the sacred period of life, when the character is developed and the promise of the future is made.

I was brought up to believe in the sacredness of the "Three R's," reading, writing, and arithmetic, and I can not quite accommodate my views with those of the heads of our educational system that it is necessary to learn to write first, and then to read. However when I see the results I recognize that I am in truth a vagabond, wandering in the realm of yesterday, and that time has come on a pace, now methods have supplanted the older ones and the results, the same in the end, readily develop, the little brains more quickly than did the old way.

However I can not bring myself to be suited with the problem that the students of the schools must have a certain make of food, pencil, certain kinds of writing paper and no other. This seems to me to be merely a whim of certain teachers. It also looks to me to be a useless expense of the money of the parents, to meet these demands. Another is that the school books can not be second hand. They must all be new. Books that are used but a few months and then cast aside, perhaps from a sanitary point of view it is correct, perhaps from the idea that a new book teaches the children to be more careful, it is educational, but it is also an expense that might be omitted if the school authorities did not make such an arbitrary ruling in the matter.

I had the pleasure of visiting the morning exercises at the high school recently and was delighted with the program that was given. On this occasion an address was made on a subject not taught in books. The speaker of the morning gave a most scholarly talk that left a deep impression upon the pupils and was instructive and interesting. Such talks are educational and improve themselves upon the minds of the students more than all the reading from books can ever do.

However I learned of another talk on another morning by another gentleman who is a most earnest advocate of the subject he discussed. It was an address that brought the listeners, teachers and all, to the highest pitch of excitement and left them disturbed and unsettled all that day and for several others. It was more on the style of old time exhortation talks of past ages when the world was painted black and stark instead of bright and happy. Such an address is educational, but it is also a matter which the subject under discussion, I am informed that several of the most nervous pupils for days were excited over the matter discussed and it interfered with their regular school work.

But leaving the schools aside and talking upon another subject I am glad to see that the common council has under consideration the replacing of the present dilapidated street signs with bright new ones. The placing of these street signs was a good one in the first place and the question of replacing them is also a better idea. There is nothing that is of more benefit, even to our own citizens, than to have their streets properly named and designated. Strangers looking for numbers on certain streets might wander for hours without finding the places sought, but for them and it gives the city a certain look that speaks well to the outside public.

However I advise that the city fathers take precautions that the bond of the firm who seek the contract be sufficiently strong enough that no money be spent uselessly on signs that will rust out within a year or two at most and become a disgrace rather than a benefit to the city. This done the council should not hesitate a minute in awarding the contracts and having the work done at once and as quickly as possible. There is nothing like adding to the natural beauty of the city and this is one of the methods most approved of.

PYTHIAN SISTERS AT FESTIVE BOARD

Evansville Temple Entertained Visitors From Madison and Reedsburg. —Other News of Interest.

Evansville, Feb. 22.—The Pythian Sisters temple of this city entertained the Pythian Sisters of Madison and Reedsburg at a banquet last evening. The supper was served in the Central hotel and covers were laid for about fifty or sixty. There were present seventeen from the Madison temple, five from Reedsburg, also two guests from Oregon and one from Lancaster.

After the banquet the company adjourned to their hall and the work of the regular session was taken up. One candidate, Mrs. Kate Hanover, was initiated. The business session was followed by a short program.

Surprise Party. A number of friends of Mrs. Lydia Smith gave her a pleasant surprise at her home yesterday afternoon. The party was in the nature of a farewell as Mrs. Smith expects to go to Illinois in a few days to reside permanently. The ladies brought with them well filled baskets from which a two course luncheon was served. Mrs. Smith received several gifts in china which will serve to remind her of the occasion and her friends in Evansville. Mrs. J. W. Collins is entertaining this afternoon in honor of Mrs. Smith.

Personal Mention. Mrs. Thompson, Grand Junior of the temple of Wisconsin, and Miss Heger, both of Reedsburg, who were here to attend the Pythian Sisters convention, were the guests of Mrs. O. C. Colony while in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Paulson spent Monday in Chicago, where Mr. Paulson went to attend the cement show. From there he went to Milwaukee to attend the lumbermen's convention.

E. M. Jones, W. H. Walker and Wm. Walworth, went to Milton Junction today as delegates to a convention of district association number 36, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Others who are attending are O. G. Griffith, G. C. Roberts and A. L. Thibet.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Dillingham have returned from a two months sojourn in California. Miss Verline of Reedsburg, was a visitor at the home of Mrs. Jay Baldwin Tuesday.

Mrs. A. E. Harte and an uncle, E. H. Harte, who is here visiting from Brookings, S. Dakota, and Mrs. Mae Shreve, were in Janesville yesterday to visit Mrs. Chas. Webb who is still in the hospital there. Mrs. Webb is improving slowly and at present is unable to sit up a part of the time.

Carroll Briggs is home from Wayland Academy for a brief visit.

George Denison of Lake Villa, Ill., who has been visiting Evansville relatives for the past week, left this afternoon to spend a short time with a sister, Mrs. H. R. Houff, in Edgerton. He was accompanied by Leddie Denison who will return Friday.

Mrs. Maude Fossenden left yesterday for Beloit to spend the remainder of the week with Mrs. Charles Lutz.

The North Side Monday club were entertained this week at the home of Mrs. S. J. Baker.

Miss Clara Leonard of Madison, is visiting the graded schools today.

S. E. Brown went to Chicago today to attend the cement show.

Miss Cora Harris and Bert Gibbs were in Union Monday evening to attend a farewell reception given for Chris Hansen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ballard. Thirty or forty neighbors were present and after an enjoyable social time a midnight supper was served. The guests presented Mr. Hansen with a lap robe. He has recently sold his farm at Union and will move soon onto a farm which he bought in the town of Algonquin.

Mrs. Charles Merrick is very ill suffering from rheumatism.

Miss Helen Johnson of Stoughton, is visiting local relatives this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Van Wart spent Tuesday in Janesville and Beloit.

Mrs. Elora Morrison and son Frank Morrison have gone to Janesville for a week's visit with relatives.

Bern Glidden was in Brooklyn yesterday to attend a sale on the Bert Glidden farm.

Marlin Wilder returned to St. John's Military Academy at Delaford yesterday.

Byrl Bullard of Janesville, is spending the day with his parents.

JANESVILLE IS NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL

Fred O. Hutchinson Writes From Fresno, Cal., Regarding Conditions at Pacific Coast.

The Gazette is in receipt of a letter from Fred O. Hutchinson, son of J. P. Hutchinson of this city. The epistle is written on some fine Japanese stationery and is dated at Fresno, Cal., Feb. 14. He writes:

"I am sending you a sample of Japanese paper used exclusively in the various provinces of Japan. It was given me by a Jap whom I rendered a slight favor."

"I met Mr. Van Cleave on the streets of Manila a short time ago and he was looking fine after his long trip, but every one looks and feels like in this country."

"The rainy season is now on here but it rains only a short time when it does rain. So far it has been very dry compared with other years and for a time the farmers were beginning to worry."

"Work is very scarce out here and wages are very poor owing to the large number of foreigners in this region. I should advise any young man coming out here to be sure of a position or to have a pocket full of money before he leaves home."

"I trust Janesville is booming, for after all it is not so worse. People in a town always like to get away from it, but let me say that I have been in every town of any size on the Pacific coast and none of them have a thing on Janesville."

CHICAGO TEAM LOST TO THE CARDINALS

Chicago Cardinals Basketball Five Was Defeated by Local Players Here Last Night.

With the score about even five minutes before the end of play in the basketball game at the rink last night, the Lakota Cardinals by a series of spectacular plays, made five baskets and won from the Chicago Cardinals, five of the Central V. M. C. A. 25 to 14. The contest was not lacking in interest, the scores being close until the last few minutes. The Lakotas scored at the opening of the match, securing four points on field baskets. The Chicago five did this and the playing was about even before the end of the first half, the Lakotas springing to the lead by 11 to 5. The Windy City men displayed better form in the second and had been able to win, but it might have been able to win. Good individual playing was shown by the Lakotas and the members of the five worked well in team work. McLean was the star of the Chicago aggregation.

Chicago Cardinals—Parker, c; Dell and Cox, rf; Sullivan, lf; McLean, pg; Rudman and Patton, lb.

DR. BEATON WILL LECTURE ON ART

Public Is Invited To Free Lecture Before the Janesville Art League Tomorrow Evening.

Dr. David Beaton will give a free lecture Friday evening at eight o'clock before the Janesville Art League at their hall in the library. The subject of the lecture will be on Art and the value which it has for every person. It is the object of the league to promote the fine and industrial arts and provide opportunity for study in special subjects. It has been a long cherished ambition of the league to establish in Janesville a permanent Art gallery. Several attempts have been taken in the past, the first in 1901 when the first picture was purchased for this purpose. Since that time several fine paintings have been added until now the value of the collection is placed at a thousand dollars.

It is the intention of the Art League to have Dr. Beaton present the importance of this question to the people of the city and arouse interest in art as well as the work which the Art League is doing. The public is invited to attend the lecture tomorrow evening.

TEAM THAT PLAYED HERE IS STRANDED

Two Rivers Five, Making Tour of the West, Deserted in Oregon by Their West Coast Manager.

Without funds or dates ahead and with their advance manager a minus quantity, the famous Hamilton basketball team of Two Rivers which played here on Dec. 31 and was defeated by the Lakotas by a score of 14 to 1, is stranded at La Grande, Oregon. The manager whose duty it was to precede the team and make dates for games ahead of the team, after scheduling a game at La Grande disappeared and his whereabouts are a mystery. They had been making a name for themselves in Oregon, playing in many cities and winning quite a few victories. In their plan now to schedule as many games as is possible with the manager they have with them and in that way to work their way back to the states. As a result of winning two games at Spokane, just before going to La Grande, they have enough money to last them for a while, at least. By playing in the various cities on their way home they hope to make the expenses of the trip.

CHORISTERS WERE HOSTS LAST NIGHT

Members of Boys' Choir On Congregational Church Entertain Fathers and Friends At Reception.

Fathers and friends were entertained last evening in the church parlors by the Boys' Choir of the Congregational church at a Washington's birthday reception. The choir held a business meeting and afterward a business and social program was given. A feature of the evening was the drawing contest, the guests being blindfolded and required to draw a pig on a blackboard. The guests were received by a reception committee, comprising Walter Craig, Victor Park, Clayton McNaughton, and Sherwood Sheldon, Hallday Day, and Robert Jeffers, attired in colonial costume, acted as ushers. Mrs. Park also wore the costume of that time.

BOARD WILL TAKE MORE PRECAUTIONS

Against Entrance Into State of Tubercular Cattle From Other States.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—The Wisconsin state livestock sanitary board is aroused over attempts in other states to evade the stringent Wisconsin tuberculosis laws. At a meeting on Monday the board instructed its secretary and veterinarian to take renewed precautions against the entrance into this state of cattle from other states having tuberculosis. New York is said to be one of the principal offenders in this respect. Often unscrupulous state officials permit cattle to be shipped to other states knowing the animals to be infected.

Nature's Warning.

Weakness is not necessarily illness. It is just the cry of the body for rest. You must not work on after reaching a point of fatigue. A few days' rest will set you right then, while if the body is made to toil and the mind to work it may take a much longer time to recover. Heed the signal of alarm.

PROSPEROUS GREEN COUNTY FARMER DEAD

J. F. Cornell Has Passed Away at His Home in Monroe at Age of Eighty Years.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Monroe, Wis., Feb. 23.—J. F. Cornell, long a well known resident of Green county, passed away at his home, 219 North Clinton street, as the result of a second paralytic stroke. Two years ago he was stricken with paralysis and up to two weeks ago, at which time he had the second stroke, he was obliged to get around with the aid of crutches.

Mr. Cornell farmed for a good many years in Adams township, giving particular attention to the breeding of the horses. He was well versed in agriculture and stock raising and was a prosperous farmer.

He was a native of Fulton county, New York, being born there in 1829. When ten years of age he came to Green county with his parents. He was twice married. Four children, Garrett C. Cornell, Harry Cornell, Dr. Norman M. Cornell, and Mrs. T. G. East, his wife and only brother, Miss Grinnell of Stoughton, Wis., survive. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Debt Reduced.

The High School Athletic association has reduced the indebtedness of its society to $100, the proceeds of a minstrel show given by high school talent, reducing the debt by about $70. Two years ago the association was $275 in the hole and through liberal support of patrons the debt now remains at $100. The minstrel show drew a large crowd who were greatly amused by the stunts of the amateurs.

Service Resumed.

Train service has been resumed on the Elgin and Rock County branch of the Illinois Central road, a transfer being made at Martinsburg. Trains leave both terminals at 10 o'clock each morning meeting at Martinsburg and transfer of baggage and passengers is made by way of the wagon bridge. A temporary bridge is being erected to be used until the bridge, through which the pile driver and engine went head first Monday morning, can be repaired.

Personal.

John Boller, who has been here on a week's visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Boller, returned to Naper, Ill., to resume his studies in Northwestern college.

Stephen Miller has been in a critical condition since having a serious stroke Tuesday evening.

The Messrs. Martin and Scott Brown entertained at a 5:30 o'clock luncheon at their home on East Russell street last evening.

RURAL CARRIERS IN SESSION YESTERDAY

Listen To Addresses At Afternoon Meeting—Janesville May Land 1912 State Convention.

About twenty carriers of the country mail from all parts of the county assembled in this city yesterday to attend the meeting of the Rock County Mail Carriers' association. The meeting was called to order at two o'clock by President A. R. Gridley. The business affairs of the association were talked over and many interesting addresses were listened to. Postmaster Valentine gave a short talk on the service in the rural districts and he was followed by Assistant Postmaster L. Rosenthal of Beloit, who spoke on the benefits of organization among the carriers.

The following men were elected as delegates to the state convention to be held at Fond du Lac, May 30 to 31: George Miller and A. R. Gridley, Janesville; M. K. Hamblett, Oregonville; and Frederick Hart, Beloit. The next meeting of the county association will probably be held later September 8. Steps were also taken to try and obtain the 1912 state convention for this city, which is scheduled to take place in the month of February of that year.

YESTERDAY'S MEET AT BLIND SCHOOL

Results and Records in the Annual Indoor Track Meet at State School for Blind.

The annual indoor interstate athletic meet for the blind students was held at the State School for the Blind yesterday afternoon and unusual interest and enthusiasm was displayed by the students. There was a list of twenty-one entries in the different events, ten in the senior class, eight in the intermediate, and five in the junior. The list of those entered was as follows: Seniors: Elmer Meyer, Elton Lewis, Robert Atholony, Fred Elmer, Milwaukee; Oscar Tey, M. Iron, John Koskuth, Amherst Junction; Edward Rausch, Ithaca; Will Hanson, Union Grove; Philip Hudson, Geneva; George Knaut, Milwaukee; Joseph Grebner, Harwood. Intermediates: Will Beals, Ft. Atkinson; Philip Harvey, Sparta; John Dikoff, Underhill; Stanislas Jagodzinski, Milwaukee; Harold Bontzine, Cumberland; Joseph Blundin, St. Croix Falls; Chester Hills, Harwood; Lloyd Harmon, Belleville; Juniors: Edwin Andrews, Plymouth; Archie Emberson, Fairchild; Earl Babcock, Beloit; Danny Willis, Platteville; Clements Bzowski, Milwaukee.

Following are the results and winners in the senior events: High kick, Meyer, first, 7 ft. 6 in.; Hyster second, 7 ft. 4 in.; Hanson, third, 6 ft. 9 in.; Channing, Grebner and Hanson, first, 20 yards; Hudson, third, 14 yards. Ponce vault: Grebner and Elmer, first, 6 ft. 1 in.; Meyer, third, 4 ft. 10 in.; step and jump: Elmer, first, 25 ft. 1 in.; Meyer, second, 21 ft.; Hudson, third, 21 ft. 2 in. Eighteen foot rope climb: Better, first, 8 seconds; Meyer, second; Grebner, third.

In the intermediate class there was only one event, that being the three jumps. First place went to Grebner, 22 feet, 2 inches; second to Hudson, 22 ft. 6 in.; and third to Hanson, 21 ft. 6 in.

The places in the junior events were awarded to the following: Hand walk: Chester Hills, 27 ft. 6 in.; Brown, jump: Grebner, first, 5 ft. 8 in.; Andrews, second, 4 ft. 8 in.; Willis, third, 4 ft. 3 in.

In the senior class, Meyer and Grebner tied for first place in the total number of points made, both having seventeen, while Elmer had third with a total of fourteen. Grebner was first in the intermediate, winning five points to Hudson's three and Hanson's one. Among the juniors, Cawinski and Hill tied for first with five points each, with Andrews third with three. These various classes are determined by the ages of the pupils and in some cases they may enter several classes.

Besides these athletic events, there were several marching drills, dumb bell exercises and exhibitions of fancy club swinging. The judges of the county were: Director Stephens of the Y. M. C. A., E. K. Boone, and Rev. Henry Williamson.

Word is expected here within a week or so of the results of similar contests in all of the other states, which were held yesterday.

Doom of the Fire Horse.

Buffalo is the latest city to doom the fire horse. Contracts have been let for the last horse-drawn fire engine that the city will buy. The fire commissioners announce that any apparatus they purchase in future will be of the automobile kind, and for each piece installed five horses will be put out of commission. That is, the motor engine will be both a pump and a hose wagon, and one of the new style vehicles will carry all the equipment of two of the old-fashioned kind. It is figured that the cost of motive power of the horse drawn apparatus is about $1,000 a year for engine and wagon and that the automobile will largely reduce this.

A Doting Dad.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Janesville Daily Gazette. For sale at all drug stores. Price fifty-cents and one-dollar.

System Full of Uric Acid—The Great Kidney Remedy Cured

Two years ago I was very sick and after being treated by several of the best physicians in Clinton, I did not seem to get any better. I was confined to my bed. Seeing Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root advertised, I resolved to give it a trial. After using it for three weeks, I found I was gaining nicely, so I continued until I had taken a number of bottles. I am now restored to health and have continued my labors. My system was full of uric acid, but Swamp-Root cured me entirely. I am sixty years old.

Yours very truly, W. C. COOK, Clinton, Iowa.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO HAVE A CITY TICKET

Name Candidates for Mayor and City Officers With the Exception of the Fifth Ward Last Night.

That the prohibitionists of Janesville will have a full ticket in the field at the coming spring election was decided upon last night at a meeting of the Booster's club. W. H. Howard was selected for mayor, W. O. Wilcox for city clerk, and for aldermen in the different wards the following were named: First ward, J. E. Curle; Second ward, L. A. McIntyre; Third ward, St. Richards; Fourth ward, A. W. Hall. There was no selection for the fifth ward. For supervisors: First ward, M. Hayner; Second ward, J. A. Galt; Third ward, S. H. Joiner. No list of selections were made for the fourth and fifth wards, these to be filled later.

Nomination papers will at once be circulated and an active campaign be started in the interests of the men named.

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith

It was after the ashes had been knocked from the bedside pipe that Mount left his chair and the secluded corner of the veranda to go and wander among the parked automobiles on the lawn.

Mount had just awakened a sleepy chauffeur to ask him to uncover the engine of a new Italian car when a stir at the veranda entrance told him that at least a few of the dancing guests were leaving early.

He drew back when the little group on the veranda came down the steps, preceded by a club footman, who was calling the number of the car. And it was not until he was turning away that he found himself face to face with a very beautiful and very clear eyed young woman who was buttoning an automobile that sat under her chin.

"Patricia!" he burst out. "For pity's sake, you don't mean to tell me that you have been here all the evening?"

Her quiet smile gave the impression not quite of frigidity perhaps, but of that quality of serene self-possession which strangers sometimes mistake for coldness.

"Why shouldn't I be here?" she asked. "Didn't you know that the Cranfords, the people who are entertaining, were old friends of ours?"

Mount shook his head. "No, I didn't know it, and because I didn't have lost an entire evening. It was cruel of you to deny me this last evening, Patricia."

"This last evening?" she echoed. "Why last?"

"Because, I am leaving Boston and New England Monday. It is the only thing to do."

"I am sorry you are taking it this way, Evan," she deprecated in the stately tone that always made him hotly resentful. "It hurts my sense of proportion."

"Sometimes I think you haven't any sense of proportion, Patricia," he said half-morously. "If you have I am sure it is dreadfully distorted."

A white haired old gentleman in the tenebrous was calling impatiently to Patricia to come and take her place so that he might close the door.

"It is you who have the distorted perspective, Evan," she countered. "Where are you going?"

"I am going west day after tomorrow."

"How odd!" she said. "We are going west, too—papa and I—though not quite so soon as Monday."

"You are?" she queried. "Whereabouts in the west?"

She did not tell him where. The car motor was whirling, the chauffeur was swinging up to his seat behind the pilot wheel, and the old gentleman in the tenebrous was growing quite violently impatient.

"I shall say goodbye," she said hastily, giving him her hand at parting, "nor shall I tell you where we are going. Let it be at Wiedersehen—till we meet again."

CHAPTER II. THE BOSS.

IN a private dining room in the Inter-mountain hotel, whose entrance portico faces the capital grounds in the chief city of the Sagebrush State, two men were finishing dinner.

On the guest book of the Inter-mountain one of the men had registered from Chicago. The name was illegible to the cursory eye, but since it was the signature of an empire builder it was sufficiently well known in all the vast region served by the Transcontinental railway system.

The owner of the name had finished his tea and was sitting back to clip the end from a very long and very black cigar. He was a man past middle age, large framed and heavy, with the square, resolute face of a born master of circumstances.

Though he figured only as the first vice president of the Transcontinental company, Hardwick McVickar was really the active head of its affairs and the director of its policy.

Across the small round table sat the railway magnate's dinner guest, a man who was more than McVickar's match in big bones, square shouldered physique, a man whose half century was written only in the thick grizzled hair and heavy frowning mustaches.

"I wish I could convince you that it isn't worth while to hold me at arm's length, senator," McVickar was saying. "You know as well as I do that under the present law in this state we are practically bankrupt. We do a losing business from the moment we cross your state line."

"Yes, it seems to me that I have heard something like that before," was the noncommittal rejoinder.

"You have heard the simple truth, then. And it is a bald injustice not only to the railroad, but to the people it serves. We can't get adequate service when the cost exceeds the earnings."

"And you are unable to convince the members of the railroad commission?" asked the man whom the vice president addressed as "senator."

"You know well enough that we can't convince an anti-railroad commission," was the half angry retort. "Yet you are still running the railroad," suggested the other.

"Yes, luckily the Transcontinental doesn't lose, not by a long way, within your state boundaries. If it did we might as well surrender our charter and go out of business."

"All of which has come to be a pretty old story, McVickar," said the listener quietly. "You didn't make me motor thirty miles to hear you tell it all over again, I know. What do you want?"

"We want a square deal," was the curt reply.

"So do the people of this state," asserted the man across the table. "You bled us, Hardwick—bled us to death while you had the chance. You are justly, if not legally, in debt to every man in this state who had ever shipped a carload of freight or paid a passenger fare over your line before the present rate law went into effect."

The vice president sat up and put his elbows on the edge of the table. "You are too funny for me, Mount, and I'm no appreciative at the game either. In all the years we've dickered together you've always been a consistent fighter for your own hand. What's happened to you? Have you acquired a new set of convictions, or is this only a different way of whipping the devil around the stump?"

"Oh, I don't know," returned the guest. "We are all growing older—and wiser perhaps. You don't deny the debt you owe us, do you?"

"Do we owe you anything, Mount?" asked the magnate pointedly. "If we do, we are willing to pay it in spot cash on demand."

"The big man on the other side of the table was leaning back in his chair with his hands in his pockets, and the smile wrinkling at the corners of his eyes was half genial, half satirical.

"It's lucky we are alone, McVickar," he said. "A third party might imagine that you are trying to bribe me."

"That's all right, Mount. We understand each other. Nothing for nothing is the accepted rule in this world of ours, and we all recognize it. You are figuring on something, I know you are. Name it. If it is anything less than a mortgage on the earth and one or two of the planets I'll get it for you."

"I am afraid we are more than a mile or two apart yet," said the man who was not smoking after a long

"Why last?"

"Because, I am leaving Boston and New England Monday. It is the only thing to do."

"I am sorry you are taking it this way, Evan," she deprecated in the stately tone that always made him hotly resentful. "It hurts my sense of proportion."

"Sometimes I think you haven't any sense of proportion, Patricia," he said half-morously. "If you have I am sure it is dreadfully distorted."

A white haired old gentleman in the tenebrous was calling impatiently to Patricia to come and take her place so that he might close the door.

"It is you who have the distorted perspective, Evan," she countered. "Where are you going?"

"I am going west day after tomorrow."

"How odd!" she said. "We are going west, too—papa and I—though not quite so soon as Monday."

"You are?" she queried. "Whereabouts in the west?"

She did not tell him where. The car motor was whirling, the chauffeur was swinging up to his seat behind the pilot wheel, and the old gentleman in the tenebrous was growing quite violently impatient.

"I shall say goodbye," she said hastily, giving him her hand at parting, "nor shall I tell you where we are going. Let it be at Wiedersehen—till we meet again."

CHAPTER II. THE BOSS.

IN a private dining room in the Inter-mountain hotel, whose entrance portico faces the capital grounds in the chief city of the Sagebrush State, two men were finishing dinner.

On the guest book of the Inter-mountain one of the men had registered from Chicago. The name was illegible to the cursory eye, but since it was the signature of an empire builder it was sufficiently well known in all the vast region served by the Transcontinental railway system.

The owner of the name had finished his tea and was sitting back to clip the end from a very long and very black cigar. He was a man past middle age, large framed and heavy, with the square, resolute face of a born master of circumstances.

Though he figured only as the first vice president of the Transcontinental company, Hardwick McVickar was really the active head of its affairs and the director of its policy.

Across the small round table sat the railway magnate's dinner guest, a man who was more than McVickar's match in big bones, square shouldered physique, a man whose half century was written only in the thick grizzled hair and heavy frowning mustaches.

"I wish I could convince you that it isn't worth while to hold me at arm's length, senator," McVickar was saying. "You know as well as I do that under the present law in this state we are practically bankrupt. We do a losing business from the moment we cross your state line."

"Yes, it seems to me that I have heard something like that before," was the noncommittal rejoinder.

"You have heard the simple truth, then. And it is a bald injustice not only to the railroad, but to the people it serves. We can't get adequate service when the cost exceeds the earnings."

"And you are unable to convince the members of the railroad commission?" asked the man whom the vice president addressed as "senator."

"You know well enough that we can't convince an anti-railroad commission," was the half angry retort. "Yet you are still running the railroad," suggested the other.

"Yes, luckily the Transcontinental doesn't lose, not by a long way, within your state boundaries. If it did we might as well surrender our charter and go out of business."

"All of which has come to be a pretty old story, McVickar," said the listener quietly. "You didn't make me motor thirty miles to hear you tell it all over again, I know. What do you want?"

"We want a square deal," was the curt reply.

"So do the people of this state," asserted the man across the table. "You bled us, Hardwick—bled us to death while you had the chance. You are justly, if not legally, in debt to every man in this state who had ever shipped a carload of freight or paid a passenger fare over your line before the present rate law went into effect."

The vice president sat up and put his elbows on the edge of the table. "You are too funny for me, Mount, and I'm no appreciative at the game either. In all the years we've dickered together you've always been a consistent fighter for your own hand. What's happened to you? Have you acquired a new set of convictions, or is this only a different way of whipping the devil around the stump?"

"Oh, I don't know," returned the guest. "We are all growing older—and wiser perhaps. You don't deny the debt you owe us, do you?"

CONCLUSION.

In her career as the wife of a western rancher Eleanor Redfield had been called upon to entertain many strange guests, and she made no very determined objection when her husband telephoned that he was bringing Liza as well as Lee Virginia to stay at Elk Lodge for a few days. The revelation of the true relation between the two women had as Liza put it made a "whole lot of difference" to Mrs. Redfield. It naturally cleared the daughter of some part of her handicap, and it had also made the mother's attitude less objectionable.

She had seen Liza but once, and that was in the dimly lighted atmosphere of the restaurant, and she remembered her only as a humpy, scowling, loud voiced creature with blowsy hair and a watchful eye. She was profoundly surprised, therefore, when Lee Virginia introduced a quiet spoken, rather and faced elderly woman as her mother.

"I'm glad to see you, Mrs. Withersford," Eleanor said, with the courtesy which was instinctive with her.

"I'm mighty obliged for the chance to come," replied Liza. "I told Reddy—I mean the superintendent—that you didn't want no old timer like me, but he said, 'Come along,' and Lee and I fixed me out, and here I am." She uttered this with a touch of her well known self depreciation, but she was by no means so uncomplimentary as common.

Ross had not yet arrived at the cabin, but Redfield had warned Lee not to expect him till after dark. "He probably slept late, and besides, there are always delays on the trail. But don't worry. Swenson will ride to the top of the divide with him and if it seems necessary will come all the way."

This feeling of anxiety helped to steady Liza, and she got through the meal very well. She was unwontedly silent and a little sad as well as constrained. She could see that Lee fitted in with these surroundings, that she was at home with shining silver and dainty dishes, and she said to herself: "I could have been something like her if I'd had any sort of raising, but it's too late now. But, Lord, wouldn't I like to see her now!"

It was not yet dark when they came out on the veranda to meet the doctor, who had come to meet Ross, and Lee's anxiety led her to say, "Can't we go up to the cabin and wait for him there?"

"I was about to propose that," replied Redfield. "Should we walk?"

Lee was instant in her desire to be off, but Liza said: "I never was much on foot, and now I'm hoarse bound. You go along, and I'll sit on the porch here and watch."

So Lee, the doctor and Redfield went off together across the meadow toward the little cabin which had been built for the workmen while putting in the dam. It was hardly a mile away, and yet it stood at the mouth of a mighty gorge, out of which the water sprang white with speed.

But Lee had no mind for the scenery, though her eyes were lifted to the meadow's wall, down which the ranger was expected to ride. It looked frightfully steep, and whenever she thought of him descending that trail, worn and perhaps ill, her heart rebelled with anxiety. But Redfield rambled on comfortably, explaining the situation to the doctor, who, being a most unimaginative person, appeared to take it all as a matter of course.

McVickar had anticipated the thing which was about to happen, not precisely in its present form, perhaps, but in some form which would involve the providing of a place for the senator's son, and he smiled inwardly when he remembered that he had given Gentry, the division traffic manager of the Transcontinental, instructions to look up one Evan Mount, a young lawyer, on his next visit to Boston.

By all odds it would be better to wait for Gentry's report before taking any decided steps in the bargaining with Evan Mount's father, but unhappily the crisis had arrived, and quite probably it could not be postponed. None the less the vice president tried for the postponement.

"You're asking a good deal, Mount, and you don't seem to realize it. If we should agree to meet the people of this state halfway, as you suggest, what guarantee have we that we won't be compelled to go all the way?"

The fine lined wrinkles were appearing again at the corners of the heretofore eyes.

It pays to read the ads.

At the cabin itself Lee transferred her interest to the supper which had been prepared for the ranger, and she went about the room, trying to make it a little more comfortable for him. It was a bare little place, hardly more than a camp (as was proper, and she devoutly prayed that he was not to be sick therein, for it stood in a cold and gloomy place, close under the shadow of a great wall of rock.

As it grew dark she lighted a lamp and placed it outside the window in order that its light might catch the ranger's eye, and this indeed it did, for almost instantly a pistol shot echoed from the hillside far above signaling his approach.

"There he is!" she exclaimed in swift rebound to ecstasy. "Hear him about?"

His voice could indeed be heard, though faintly, and so they waited while the darkness deepened and the voice of the stream rose like an exclamation, increasing in violence as the night fell.

At last they could hear the sound of his horse's feet upon the rocks, and with girlish impulse Lee raised a musical cry, an invitation as well as a joyous signal.

To this the ranger made vocal answer, and they could soon see him moving athwart the hillside, zigzagging in the trail's fashion, dropping down with incredible swiftness. He was alone and leading his horse, but his elocution of movement and the tones of his voice denoted confidence and health.

The doctor laughed as he said, "I don't think a very sick man could come down a mountain like that."

"Oh, he isn't sick yet," said Redfield. "What we are afraid of is a possible development."

Liza was on the veranda when Lee and Redfield returned. "Did he get through?" she asked.

"It's all right so far," returned Redfield cheerily. "We left the doctor about to fly at him. We'll have a report soon."

They had hardly finished telling of how the ranger had descended the hill when the doctor arrived. "He hasn't a trace of it," was his report. "All he needs is sleep. I cut him off from his entire over the range outfit, and there is no reason why he should not come down to breakfast with you in the morning."

Mrs. Redfield thanked the doctor as fervently as if he had conferred a personal favor upon her, and the girl echoed her grateful words.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2. by Making it at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready-made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualic acid and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"Oh, that's all right," the doctor replied in true western fashion. "I'll do as much more for you any time." And he rode away, leaving at least one person too happy to sleep.

The same person was on the veranda next morning when Cavanagh, dressed in the supervisor's best suit of gray cassimere, came striding across the lawn, too impatient of the winding drive to follow it. As he came, his face glowing with recovered health, Lee thought him the god of the morning and went to meet him unashamed, and he took her to his arms and kissed her quite as he had promised himself to do.

"Now I know that I am delivered," he exclaimed. And they entered the new west together.

THE END.

Immolation to the Dead.

It was an ancient America that immolation to the dead was carried to its greatest extent. "In Mexico every great man's chaplain was slain that he might perform for him the religious ceremonies in the next life as in this. Among the Indians of Vera Paz, when a lord was dying, they immediately killed as many slaves as he had, that they might precede him and prepare the house for their master. By the Mexicans the number of the victims was proportioned to the grandeur of the funeral, and amounted sometimes, as several historians affirm, to two hundred. In Peru, when an Incadied his attendants and favorites, appointing sometimes, it is said, to a thousand, were immolated on his tomb."

Where the Mule Wins.

"Do mules have as best of do human kicker," said Uncle Eben, "for do reason dat he's willin' to stop it sometimes an' go to work."

Backache Means Dying Kidneys

A Remarkable Treatment That Saves the Kidneys, How You May Cure Yourself Quickly and Thoroughly.

With the progress of science comes one remarkable treatment for kidney diseases. It has been so thoroughly tested and its results have proven so revolutionary that a well-known firm in Michigan has undertaken its distribution into every part of the country.

Those who suffer from kidney trouble and the diseases resulting from it will be pleased to know that every package of this treatment is thoroughly guaranteed. This should assure at last a positive cure to every sufferer.

Every man and woman should know that backache is usually a well-defined symptom of advancing kidney disease which may end fatally unless treated in time; that rheumatism and bladder trouble are caused from nothing more nor less than kidneys that do not filter the poison from the blood; that dropsy, bright's disease, diabetes and bladder diseases are caused by bad kidneys.

Once they are made to work properly, these diseases should quickly disappear.

This is done by the new treatment, Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills.

We urge everyone who has pain in the small of the back, profuse or scanty urination, pain in the bladder, cloudy or foul urine, not to fail to get a package today of Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills, and drop all other kidney treatments.

Senator Stevenson of Washington, writes from Olympia: "There is no question about the efficacy of Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills in curing kidney and bladder

Clocks That Strike Thirteen.

Among the most curious clocks in the world, says Harper's Weekly, are two in Worsley, Lancashire, England, that never strike one. Instead, they strike 13 at one a. m. and one p. m. One of them is over the earl of Blessmere's place called Worsley hall, and is the original clock which the duke of Bridgewater had placed in the tower. It is said that the duke had the clock made to strike the "unlucky" number so as to warn his workmen that it was time to return after dinner, some of them having excused themselves for being late on the ground that they could not hear it strike one.

Benton's Withdrawal.

After the death of John C. Calhoun a friend said to Senator Benton: "I suppose, senator, you won't pursue Calhoun beyond the grave?" To which he replied: "No, sir, when God Almighty lays his hand upon a man, sir, I take mine off, sir."

To Strengthen the Heart.

If the heart is weak but otherwise normal it can often be strengthened by active log movements, such as running on tiptoes, swimming the legs back and forth and in a circular motion, flexing the foot and knees and running. This last should be begun slowly and not continued too long at first.

Hatched in Hot Well.

It has remained for a clever Californian rancher to find practical use for a well of hot water he found on his place. This man was the possessor of a ranch that contained a natural hot-water plant, which seemed to be neither useful nor ornamental until his ingenuity devised a scheme for the hatching of chickens by the heat of the water. He found that the well had an even temperature of 103 degrees, says Popular Mechanics, and after testing its capacity with one "killing" of eggs, every one of which hatched, made permanent use of it. A galvanized iron incubator was especially built for this purpose. It is two feet long, 18 inches wide and six inches high, fitted with two air pipes and a chimney-like ventilator with a cover 12 inches high.

Why "Quakers."

Members of the Society of Friends are frequently designated by outsiders as "Quakers," but few people probably have any idea that Quakers is a nickname given in scorn. George Fox, the founder of the sect, gives the origin of the name in his Journal. "Justice Bennett of Derby was the first to call us 'Quakers,' because I bade him quake and tremble at the Word of the Lord." This occurred in 1650.

Piano Tuner in Blam.

Piano tuners appear to have a good time in Blam. In the recently published journal of Miss Jottand, the wife of the French official in Bangkok, she notes as a most important event "a visit from the gentleman who condescends to tune our piano. The arrival of this important personage, who has just landed from Singapore, is eagerly looked forward to, and no great is the demand for his services. That he exports $10 for tuning an instrument. After leaving here he proceeds to the Siam Malay states, and from thence to Borneo, Sarawak, the Federated Malay states, and then back to Singapore. Not a bad round for a piano tuner!"

★ FORTY YEARS AGO ★

Janesville Gazette, Feb. 23, 1871.—Jottings—Blatting in this city has been used up by the prevailing thaw. Washington's birthday was not generally observed in this city, the banks, some of the public offices and the newspaper establishments being closed. No hope that in time our citizens will learn to show due respect to the anniversary of the birth of the individual who is justly entitled to the appellation of the "Father of his Country."

A daring robbery was committed last evening about ten o'clock on the premises of Mr. Schickler, a baker on N. Main street. The individual who operated in this burglarious manner boldly approached the front window of the bakery at the hour stated, and with his knife removed a portion of a pane of glass. Through the opening thus made he abstracted about ten dollars worth of cake and candies and took his departure laden with the booty.

There is a large amount of snow scattered over the prairie which surround Janesville which will undoubtedly cause dangerous floods if broken up by the spring rains.

That fruitful source of configuration, the Chicago and Northwestern wood pile, was found to be on fire about half past twelve last night. The alarm was given and the steamer taken to the scene. After a few hours labor the fire was quenched. About one hundred cords of wood were destroyed.

It would be in good taste for the authorities of Rock county to purchase a flag for the staff which rises from the tower of the court house, and instruct the janitor of that edifice to unfurl the same on a national holiday. Washington's birthday passed without any public recognition of its importance.

A few more days of this thawing weather will cut off communications between Janesville and the surrounding country.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS

WEST CENTER.
West Center, Feb. 23.—Friends in this vicinity extend to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brandenberger their sympathy in the loss of their two month old baby, Clarence. The funeral was held at the German Lutheran church, Saturday, at one o'clock, interment taking place in Bethel cemetery.

One of the most pleasant social gatherings of the season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Brown last Wednesday evening. Progressive chess was played and a good time enjoyed by all. The ladies prize was won by Mrs. Geo. Yeomans, and the gentlemen's prize by John Cleveland. The consolation prizes were given to Mrs. Frank Spiller and Dick Roberts. At midnight a dainty luncheon was served, and the early hours of morning found the guests departing, vowing Mr. and Mrs. Brown royal entertainers.

Origin of "Blue Laws."

The name "blue laws" was given to the first collection of laws framed for the government of the New Haven colony. They were published in collective form in 1650, the volume being in a blue cover, which gave rise to the name that has clung to the laws ever since.

TAFT IS GUEST OF MASONS

President Attends Convention at Alexandria Assembled to Raise Funds to Erect Washington Memorial.

Washington, Feb. 23.—President Taft was the guest of the Masonic fraternity in Alexandria, Va. Nearly all the grand jurisdictions of the country sent representatives to a convention, the purpose of which is to raise funds for the erection of a Masonic memorial to George Washington, in Alexandria, which is but a short distance from Mt. Vernon.

President Taft left Washington as the guest of Senators Martin and Swanson and Representative Carlin. He was received by the Masons, saw the exemplification of the Master Mason's degree and made a brief address.

WOOD ALCOHOL KILLS FOUR

Beverage Is Taken at Wedding Dinner—Victims Are Stricken With Mad Frenzy and Die.

Middletown, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Wood alcohol, taken as a beverage at the wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly in Horton county Tuesday night, cost the lives of four persons. James Kelly, brother of Thomas, and Thomas Harvey died Tuesday night. Soon afterward Mrs. Thomas Kelly died, and later her husband succumbed.

After drinking a quantity of the alcohol after the anniversary dinner the victims were suddenly stricken with a mad frenzy and later all collapsed.

INJURED IN COLLEGE FIGHT

Wesleyan University Student in Critical Condition as Result of Contact With Live Wire.

Middletown, Conn., Feb. 23.—An early morning fight between freshmen and sophomores over the historic Douglas cannon on the Wesleyan university campus resulted disastrously. Raymond J. Brokaw of Plainfield, N. J., climbed a telegraph pole to cut some wires and touched a live wire, falling 20 feet to the ground. He is in a precarious condition.

Two other students were injured and during the rush a portion of the football bleachers was set on fire and destroyed.

BIG SLIDE IN CANAL

PIONEER CUT FILLED WITH ROCK AND EARTH.

Puzzle for Panama Engineers—May Necessitate Change in Plans—Avalanche Without Precedent.

Colon, Feb. 23.—Upsetting all theories and all estimates, 500,000 cubic yards of rock and earth slid into the pioneer cut just opposite the town of Colon.

It is one of the worst slides the canal commission engineers have had to contend with. It is worse than any previous slide, from the fact that others could be explained or even predicted.

The latest avalanche of earth changes canal plans materially. It makes it seem necessary that the entire prism shall be enlarged sufficiently to prevent any occurrences of the sort after the completion of the canal.

There seems to be no doubt that all of Gold Hill will have to be removed, which in itself is a considerable undertaking, and 325,000 yards of the slide itself represents waste. The remainder it was intended to remove.

It always has been held that slides were caused when heavy rainfall made the earth soggy, and the sloping beds of rock beneath slippery. But the Gold Hill slide is without precedent. There have been no heavy rains in this section for six weeks and there has been no blasting in the vicinity for more than a year.

SEATTLE WOMEN WIN AGAIN

Defeat All But Three of Councilman Candidates Identified With G. I. I., Recently Recalled.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 23.—For the second time in a month the votes of women have worked a revolution in Seattle.

In the primary election to choose eighteen candidates for councilman to be voted on March 7, the women voters followed up their vote of February 7 which ousted Mayor Ilwam C. Gill and his appointive officers by defeating all but three candidates who were accused of being on intimate terms with the late Gill administration.

These three were nominated by so narrow a margin that it is almost certain they will not be among the nine selected as councilmen in March.

For a Grouch.

Here is something to remember, you grouches who look sour on the way to work: Experience proves that every man has a better time earning his money than he has in spending it.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

"Yes, it makes 'Fido' cross to have them about the house."

YOUR SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH

WILL FEEL FINE IN FIVE MINUTES

Indigestion and all other Stomach distress goes after taking a little Diapiespn.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of indigestion or Diapiespn, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapiespn occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water Brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapiespn really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pp's Diapiespn from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

ASQUITH SCORES POINT

VETO BILL PASSES FIRST READING IN COMMONS.

Prime Minister Is Given Ovation When He Wins First Battle Against the Lords.

London, Feb. 23.—The parliament bill, designed to abolish the power of veto of the house of lords, was passed on its first reading by the house of commons by the government's full majority of 124, the vote being 261 to 227.

When the result was announced the Nationalists and Liberals made a wild demonstration directing their cheers at Premier Asquith, and repeating the exhibition a few minutes later when the premier quietly left the scene of his victory.

The debate in the commons developed the Unionist argument as a plea for a settlement of the fate of the upper house by agreement. Winston Spencer Churchill answered these persuasions with the declaration that the ministers would not have 50 supporters left if they consented to such a course.

As to the referendum, he said the government did not fear it as a check on progressive legislation, but regarded it as a vicious and entirely unsuitable system.

The policy of the opposition in the upper house is believed to have been disclosed by the statement of Lord Lansdowne that he intended to introduce a bill to amend the constitution of the house of lords.

Education Meet in Mobile. Mobile, Ala., Feb. 23.—The department of superintendence of the National Education association opened its convention here today with addresses of welcome by Emmett O'Neal, governor of Alabama, and P. J. Lyons, mayor of Mobile. The principal topic of discussion during the three days of the convention will be "Educational Achievement and Educational Endeavor at the Close of the First Decade of the Twentieth Century."
